

CHATEAU ET JARDINS DE VASCOEUIL

OUR DIFFERENT POINTS OF INTEREST

ARCHITECTURE : The Chateau is an admirable testimony of the "noble houses" built in Normandy after the Hundred Years War. It has retained its typical structure dating from the last years of the 15th century, with its doors with basket-handle arches, handsome chimneys and its façade made of local sandstone on the ground floor. There is also a fine octagonal tower dating back to the 12th century. The dovecote (ISMH) built during the 17th century is remarkable for its original framework and the winding ladder which allowed access to the pigeonholes in the past, still visible today.
